Traditions Change For the Better

Yearbook Enters 80's

By Michelle Parchett

This year's yearbook is like no other you have ever seen before. Why? Because we wanted to make our yearbook the way yearbooks are supposed to be. The first change is having a thematic concept: Breaking Tradition. We decided to break all sorts of traditions in order to make our book look more professional.

Gone is the 1950's concept of just pictures, silly captions and no informative copy. We wanted to bring the 1988 Harvesrer into the 1980's, by sprucing it up with a magazine concept of feature articles and graphic effects. We are breaking a tradition that kept our book in the dark ages of yearbook production.

Toward that goal, this year's book contains articles about the prom, homecoming, and other special events that took place throughout the year. There are also articles on faculty, students, fads, and other aspects of the total Caro-Meridian High School experience. This is done because not only did we want to capture the year in pictures, but we wanted to capture the feelings and drama of the year as well. It is of great importance to us to not only make the book meaningful the first time you look through its pages, but also to have it be meaningful to you 20 years from now when you look through its pages.

Another reason for this drastic change in the yearbook is because we want to submit it in national competition. So we had to change it into a more 80's professional style book. While some of you may not like the changes we are not going to hold to tradition simply for tradition's sake.

If you think about it, the changes in the yearbook aren't as major as some of the changes that have taken place at Caro-Meridian over the past few years. Many people believed that it wasn't possible for Caro to change in its attitudes and traditions, but it has.

Take for example the attitude that a woman principal at the high school would never be able to handle the job. I'm sure some of you can remember sitting in class when our former counselor Mrs. Hoskins, was preparing herself to become an administrator. Well not only is Mrs. Hoskins the first woman principal in the history of our high school; but she's handling the job like a pro. Thus, she broke both a tradition and a sexist attitude with her new position.

Con't on pg 5.

TRADITION STARTED AT HOMECOMING. Despite rain and sleet, students' spirits weren't dampened at the homecoming bonfire. They had an experience they'll never forget.

...TTING PRETTY. Many students, includ... ...ple of party goers, enjoyed the 1987 prom, which ... held for the first time outside ... the Wine Creek Inn.

Old traditions broken New traditions started

"And the school closings for today are: A.P.W., Baldwinsville, Cato-Meridian. . ." Those words put joy into the hearts of students and make the teachers scream. Last year was the first year in our memory that those words weren't spoken. The old tradition of Cato-Meridian having at least one snow day a year was stopped.

By the way, who says we don't have school spirit! The gym floor was painted the school colors, blue and gold this past summer. Also the schedules received a bit of school spirit by giving us "gold" and "blue" days. The expanded homecoming activities were also a sign of increased school spirit.

"We can't have a big music program! Why the whole idea is absurd. We don't have the money or the ability." That may have been true once but this year Cato's music department has been working very hard to change that. The Marching Band began to practice every night and learned how to be competitive. With its increased ability and dedication the band will be entering competitions next year.

In short, not only has the yearbook changed but so has the school. We hope that by breaking all sorts of tradition pertaining to the yearbook, The Harvester will be seen as starting a new tradition of excellence. To put this in a little bit better perspective, the 1988 yearbook reflects the continuing growth and change of our school for the better.

Students eagerly await the start of this year's Homecoming pep rally.

Student Life

Busy describes Cato students.

If you had to choose one word to describe student life at Cato-Meridian it would be hectic. For a small school we have so many opportunities available for involvement that for most students, the decision becomes, "what do I give up because I don't have the time."

From academics, to clubs, to sports teams, all involve student life. Many of us find ourselves having to pick and choose. "Do I want to play basketball when I'm already on honor society, yearbook staff, involved with the school plays and taking piano lessons on the side?" We wouldn't have it any other way though. Involvement enriches our lives. It's fun. It's what student life at Cato is all about.

Prom brings out mixed emotions

By Shana Sutley

Oh no . . . not again. I can feel the tension begin as Prom time swings around again. I wonder if the guys know how mean they can be?! I wonder if they have any consideration!!

Oh great. A month until the prom.

" . . . By the way, will you go to the prom with me?"

"Oh I'm sorry, but I'm already going with someone . . . "

(Who am I going to get to take me to the prom?!)

" . . . While I'm thinking about it, will you go . . . "

" . . . NO! Oh I mean, I'm going with someone already . . . "

(I really must find a suitable person to take me!!)

" . . . What? Oh, I'm sorry but . . . "

Now, I'd really like to go with HIM!! Wouldn't he look great in a tux?! And he owns his own car . . . I'll keep my fingers crossed . . . "

"Hello dear, did you have a good day at school?"

"Oh sure, Mom. Pretty normal."

"Did anyone ask you to the prom?"

"Oh, not really . . . Maybe I won't go . . . "

The one thing the 1987 Prom presented that everyone was waiting for . . . FOOD.

Gym out . . . Wine Creek Inn!

"It couldn't be done." "The prom has always been in the gym!" "It's a tradition!" Those were some of the comments that were said about the idea of moving the Junior-Senior Prom outside the school last year.

Fortunately critics were ignored and the Prom was held at the Wine Creek Inn, thus beginning a new tradition of excellence. The 1988 Prom was held at The Wine Creek Inn and plans are already in the works to hold the 1989 Prom at another ourside location.

For students, the 1987 Prom will always be remembered, which ties into the theme "Never Say Goodbye." The crowning of Michelle Charbonneau and Chilian Exchange Student Miguel Sanchez as Queen and King and the recognition of Prince Ray Smithler and Princess Lisa Scozzari were highlights. Also the fine food, dancing, and the limbo contest will hold pleasant memories. Even the shock of warching advisor Mr. Cancro and his wife do more than slow dance led to some razzing of their son Lance. To which he responded, "Hey, no, they can get down!"

Start of new school tradition

Changes came to the Homecoming festivities this year. Homecoming started with a pep assembly on Thursday and then quickly followed with a parade, bonfire and dance and ended with the big Hannibal-Caro football game on Friday.

The assembly saw the crowning of senior Lisa Scozzari as queen, the introductions of the cross country, field hockey and football teams, and the band and cheerleaders helping build spirit.

Led by the Marching Band, the parade included floats from the fall sports' teams, the booster club and cars with the homecoming queen and attendants.

Hot Homecoming sparks excitement

Hot! That word best describes the first night of homecoming. Starting with the bonfire and sizzling through the dance the night proved to be a tremendous boost to student spirit and morale.

The fire, due to sleet and rain had a little trouble catching but when it did, the heat was intense. Moving into the warm gym, under the blazing strobe lights, dancing to a hot beat caused the homecoming weekend's excitement to reach a feverish pitch.

Game preparation pays off with tie

By Lance Cancro

The week before a Homecoming game is always filled with a sense of anticipation and pride for both the players and the fans. It's a time to prove yourself in front of your classmates and the community. Everyone's eyes seem to be on you as the first play takes place and the week's practice all comes back.

Hard work and lots of practice all come back and a unique feeling of team unity fills your head. The drills and lessons of mental discipline all melt into a blur as your nerves take over and instinct comes in.

The Homecoming game is a strange tradition carried on through the years, one filled with emotion, pride, and a deep feeling of wanting to be number one. A tradition that we'd never overlook.

Note: The Caro-Meridian football team put together a strong fourth quarter comeback to overcome a 16-0 deficit and tie a strong Hannibal squad in its Homecoming game.

Faculty and Staff

Teaching team will be missed

By Jackie Terer

After 24 years of endless dedication to the business department, Rose and Dick Hills are retiring. Having taught a variety of courses over the years and touching the lives of countless students, the Hills' retiring will represent a major change not only in their lives, but in the lives of Cato-Meridian students.

Mr. and Mrs. Hills plan to sell their house in Cato and go to Florida for the winter months and stay with relatives until they find their own place. They expect to travel a lot around the world and visit their relatives in various places of the continent. During the summer they will be staying at their summer home at Cross Lake in Cato.

When asked why they decided to retire this year, the Hills' said that Mr. Hills had health reasons and they wanted to spend more time together doing things they couldn't do because of their work.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hills agreed that their years at Cato-Meridian were positive. The parents, administration, staff and community had been supportive and helpful. They both will miss their jobs because they enjoy teaching and mostly the kids, and the working environment.

We would like to thank two special people, Richard and Rose Hills, who have dedicated their lives to the students and faculty of Cato-Meridian.

There have been a lot of changes throughout the years the Hills taught here. The biggest change was the enrollment of Business education department suffering drastically because of the implementation of New York State Regents action plan. Also to the detriment of students who might not go on to four year college, these students aren't able to take advantage of the business or computer skills needed for employment.

When asked, "do you think your years here were successful", the Hills answered with a resounding "yes". Many students come back and told of their valuable help in obtaining jobs in the business world. Many college students come back and say how helpful the business and computer classes have been in college studies and part-time jobs.

Many students standout in their minds because they have watched them develop skills and self confidence and becoming contributing members of society. "We have followed many careers of students."

The Hills have an interesting background of their road to teaching. Mrs. Hills went to school at St. Rose in Albany N.Y., then took graduate work at the University of Arizona. She also attended Oswego and she worked as a secretary in an office before entering the teaching profession. Mr. Hills got his Bachelors degree at Skidmore College, Saratoga N.Y., and went to Syracuse for his Masters. He has also had some banking experience and has owned his own car dealership.

They both wanted to teach. Mrs. Hills knew she wanted to since she was in sixth grade. Mr. Hills wanted to teach for the benefit of helping people. He commented that there was more personal satisfaction in helping a student to develop self-worth than in selling cars.

The question of living together and working together was raised but the Hills agreed that working together caused no problems in their marriage. In fact the contrary is true; they help each other to grow in the fields of business and it also gives them an opportunity at home to discuss programs and developments.

These two teachers will be greatly missed not only by the students and faculty they've worked with for many years, but the community as well. As a student who has been in their classes, I would like to thank them both for the knowledge and skills I have been taught.

Eighth grade survey provides interesting results

Conclusion: They are slightly wierd!

By Krysta Cox

This year's Eighth grade class arrived with the usual disorder and confusion that can be expected from anyone starting in a new school. It didn't take them long, though, to become used to the new building and crowd. However some of the upper classmen began to wonder "What do the eighth graders really think?" "What are their reactions to high school?"

To solve this great mystery we set out on a huge campaign of interviews and surveying, and now we have the results. For example, did you know that 85% of the students surveyed felt that high school was easier than middle school? The favorite color of the majority of the eighth grade is red. 99% of all eighth grade students prefer gym class over any other. Finally when we asked what items students would take with them to Mars, answers ranged from sick elephants to hair brushes, toxic waste to text books, and toilet bowls to rocks. Over all the eighth grade is well adjusted to high school life and certainly has a wide range of opinions and goals for the future.

Tina Irving tidies up after gym class.

by Marcia Keithley

Getting rid of the stigma of being the youngest class in the high school is one of the biggest thrills of becoming a freshmen. Not only did the class of 1991 do that, but they also were determined to make their mark on the high school. The class of 1991 was inducted to the world of high school with vengeance this year. Like all freshmen classes, they're beginning to realize the money graduation, proms, and a senior trip really cost. To make the dollar figure rise even more they have decided they want to take a one day trip every year as well. So their main project this year was fundraising.

Despite, (or perhaps because of) their need for money, the freshmen also wanted to help some people out. In November, they sponsored a food drive for a classmate whose house burned down, and they made some charity donations during the Christmas season, proving that they weren't just thinking of their class.

Selling cookies, candy, and Christmas gifts as well as holding dances, raffles, and car washes were all a part of their fundraising effort.

Sophmore Pam Brant, who has recently recovered from an aneurysm. should be an inspiration of faith and dedication to us all.

Early last February Pam was suddenly stricken with the aneurysm, a blood clot in the brain, which was severe enough to temporarily cripple her and keep her from the rest of the '86-'87 school year. Pam, who is now back in school and on her way to recovery, battles with many every day things that are common place to us. The aneurysm caused Pam to lose the use of her right arm and leg, but through therapy sessions twice a week, she has regained almost 100% usage of these limbs.

Though she couldn't play this year, she is going to tryout for the varsity volleyball team next year. Hopefully, she will have two strong years of volleyball ahead of her. She is also going to tryout for the field hockey team next year. Both of these are quite significant accomplishments.

She said it was difficult to get back in to the swing of things after missing a half year of school. Her friends didn't know how to talk to her and treat her when she first got back. Now they realize that nothing has changed. Pam is truly the symbol of courage for the C-M students. We all look up to her and all she's been through.

Jeans Make Statements

By Jason Teska, Shannon Mack and Jennifer Tanner

Ever since Levi Straus introduced jean material to the cowboys of the wild west, people of all ages have been wearing them. But it seems just recently there has been a revolution in the ways that people wear jeans. They seem to be making a statement from "peace" to "relax, take it easy."

Jeans are available in a vast array of styles, and just recently in different shades and colors. Of course, there are your traditional blue jeans but you can also get a complete outfit all the way down to jean earrings. This includes, jackets, skirts, shirts, boots, and purses. Colors include blue, black, white, and colors you would never imagine.

Styles include acid-washed, stone-washed, bleached, rye-dye, and also the impractical holey jeans. People wear these different styles to make a statement. Somebody who wears rye-dye might be trying to say something similiar to what protestors of the 60's were trying to say about society. Others may be wearing these just to be stylish. Someone wearing torn or holey jeans may be trying to portray the rebellious look.

We hope our new styles and traditions have made an impression on the school and community. Jeans have always been popular, but have not always been as effective in saying something. We hope that the popularity of jeans will continue to grow because they're casual, comfortable, and definitely wearable.

Senior's qualities inspire class

By Pat Grady

Courageous. That's the word that most easily comes to mind when I think of my friend and classmate Howard Klein. His never ending faith, hope and dreams are always apparent in his constant beaming smile and his desire to learn and be involved in school.

With his sharp wit and caring heart he is, what you might think, an ordinary teenager; but what makes him different is the way he has learned to accept and deal with fate.

I cannot imagine why it is he who is suffering from muscular dystrophy because he is not deserving of it.

Howard Klein is a great friend whose determination, fortitude and valor have left a lasting impression on me.

I am Silvia Albuquerque Soares, an exchange student from Brazil. I come from Curitiba, which is a city of one and a half million people, located in Southern Brazil.

Living here I had to make many adjustments, especially at school. In Brazil, I didn't change classes so the teachers came to us. Also, we didn't have lockers and we studied only in the morning. I also had to make adjustments because of the weather. In Brazil, it seldom gets very cold and I can go to the beach year round! We never had snow so I will never forget the day that I saw snow for the first time. Although I'll never get used to the cold, I now love skiing and sledding.

The food isn't all that different so I quickly got used to it. I love chocolate, hamburgers, macaroni, and cheese (from the box), cookies and pizza.

Coming from a large city, it was different getting used to a small town, let alone a farm. But my experiences have taught me a lot.

I think that Americans need to travel to other countries to understand their customs and realize that not only the U.S. exists.

This year will be unforgettable and very important to my future. I'll miss my friends very much, my host families and all the good moments I've had here.

Breaking Tradition

Academics

More emphasis given to academics

Tougher graduation requirements, more homework, and more recognition for students, who work hard academically have marked a good change this year.

Due to the new Regents Action plan, students are required to take an extra year of social studies, math, science and also a foreign language among other classes in order to graduate. This means students are taking more and more classes and having fewer study halls. It also means that students are receiving more homework. All of this is intended to make school more academically challenging for the students. Another change is the emphasis given to the students who work hard. Much more recognition is being given to academics through the National Honor Society and such programs as P.E.A.C.E Awards and Math counts.

By offering tougher, more challenging courses and recognizing the hard working student it is hoped that academics and the academic minded student will become predominant at Caro-Meridian.

10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1, 0. Blast Off with Michael Blayney's eighth grade science classes as they delved into the realm of rocketry.

Mr. Blayney, an eighth and ninth grade science teacher at our school won a mini-grant for $500 from the Cayuga-Onondoga Teacher center in December of this school year. The mini-grant was highly competative and it took Mr. Blayney about four hours to complete the application process for the grant.

Mr. Blayney's grant was titled "The Physics of Model Rocketry." The reason he applied for the grant was because there wasn't enough classroom materials or money for him to teach rocketry the way he felt best.

Mr. Blayney hopes that by starting his students out at building model rockets his students will be able to expand their abilities to include such things as: advanced design rockets, computers assisted instructions, flight tracking equipment, and rocket engines.

The goals of the program are that his students will be able to

Mr. Blayney and his eighth grade students were given a rare opportunity to expand a classroom project into other related fields and enjoy learning at the same time.

Fast Times

Crack! Woosh! And then cheers were heard coming from the Industrial Arts hallway one after noon as Mr. Billings' Mass Production class held a wooden car racing derby.

Propelled by Co2 cartridges, the cars reached speeds of 60 plus miles per hour over the 66 foot course. The eventual winning car was produced by student teacher Steve Badeer and was clocked at 66.6 mph.

Assigned the project of constructing a product that could be massed produced was a challenge for the class. Students quickly turned their love of cars and racing into a valuable learning experience because they had to consider such things as aerodynamics and weight distribution in designing their racers.

Students were all given the same amount of material and then they went from there as they had to each design, build and then race their own car.

This project was just one of many done by the Industrial Arts Department this year to enhance students' learning experiences.

Breakfast: a big hit

By Shana Sutley

Home economics has been a required course in 8th grade for years. But it seems to disappear as the years progress. Actually, there are many individual courses stemming from Home Ec. that help lead the way for students trying to make a career in sewing, managing, cooking, and related fields.

This year was a real breakthrough for the 1987-88 gourmet food class. Led by Miss Donnelly, the class opened what was known as the Breakfast Club and made Fridays the day that everyone could go into school and eat breakfast. Any number of food items could be bought from aromatic cinnamon rolls made fresh, to 100% juice in a box (on a more healthier note).

The reason the club was founded was to help its members learn more about food by creating a "Special" every Friday, to "Tax their culinary talents," to help gain experience on a small scale for their chosen occupations, and to raise money for trips to various Restaurants to get a birds-eye view of the gourmet world in action.

Shakespeare Lives

Giving students new experiences is one of the goals in English classes this year. One special event in December was a presentation by Shakespearean actor Duncan Inches.

Mr. Inches talked about various plays of Shakespeare's as well as acting out some famous soliloqueys. In twelfth grade English Mr. Inches did some famous scenes from Hamlet, a play the students were reading at the time. His explanations and acting made the play come alive for the students. In other classes Inches did scenes from, MacBeth, Julius Ceaser, and A Mid Summer Night's Dream.

Inches who was educated in England, is a stage actor. In Central New York, he is best known for his work at the Renaissance Fair in Sterling.

Music department growing

The music department is alive and well. In addition to the everyday concert band, the marching band has been hard at work, hoping to compete next year. So lots of ground work has been laid this year and the year before, to make the band competitive enough.

Chorus is still going strong, doing such delights as "Mr. Sandman" and "Alleluia." The female dominated chorus still needs more guys, four being not enough. They're hoping next year will even the ratio up, the guys are a rare commodity in this section of music.

Either way the music department is a deep and growing part of Cato traditions.

Learning beyond the classroom

The thrill of competition. The good feeling that comes with being physically in shape. The pride of being on a team. The fun of playing a sport one loves. All aspects are part of athletics. But sports also provide so much more.

Being involved on a sports' team is a valuable part of the learning experience in high school. Learning how to work with a group, how to perform to the best of one's ability, and rising to meet a challenge are but a few of the important experiences sports provide that a student will draw from later on in life.

Although academics is the most important part of high school, a varied sports program offers many experiences that the classroom cannot provide.

Team experience provides family feeling

By Lance Cancro

The 1987 Cato-Meridian Football squad had a successful year finishing 3-4-1, the best record in five years. A young inexperienced team, which started 6 juniors, B.J. Barriger, Mike Weller, Marc Quick, Jared Trapp, Brian Murphy, Lance Cancro, and one sophomore, Rod Pollack, expect an experienced team back next year.

Disappointing losses not only happen on the Football field like the Port Byron game which Cato led early on to lose two key players, and ultimately, the game, but also you have to let your seniors move on. This years seniors included Tim Schmitt, Trevor Warner, Trevor Cady, Bill Phelps, Doug Appleman, Eric Cummings, Pat Grady, Ray Smithler, Stan Jewell and Captain Mike Tyler. All of the efforts of these players will be missed in the 1988 season.

Even as you move past the good times of Football, as you pass through the family feeling, you realize that the lessons learned always stay with you. The words of Coach Cancro describe these feelings better than any others. "Life is like a football game, you win, you lose, but no matter what, you pick yourself up and finish with pride, dignity, and charactor."

Young team gains experience.

The Cross country team didn't have a season compairable with its record. Even though the scores didn't show it, this year's team was young and inexperienced with 5 underclassmen, and only two senior runners. An important year for the growth of the program, this year's runners show that their 1-9 record does not always illustrate the season.

Seniors Kris Vanderveer and Mike Darby gave the team leadership as the team was composed mainly of freshmen. Returning for the Cato runners are Sophomore Mark Perkins and Freshmen Alex Krakuszeski, Auke Piersoma, Chris Pierson, and Randy Dietz.

First year Coach Donna Cappellano, summed up the performance of the 1987 team by saying, "Too much emphasis is placed on the overall record and not enough placed on the abilities and hard work of the kids throughout the season."

Youth leads hockey team

By Becca Janes

The 1987 Varsity Field Hockey Team spent much of the season building up the endurance and skills of an almost totally new team. It had only three returning starters from last year, so it really was an all new beginning.

A winning season was anticipated, but after beginning with three ties, a win and a loss, the team ended with five losses and two ties to finish at 1-6-5. The Lady Devils may have lost a few games, but three of the games were lost by one goal, usually coming in the closing seconds of the first half.

Anticipation is high for next year's team, as they are losing only one veteran senior, Lura Lunkenheimer, so ten of the 11 starters will be back. The players hope this experience will lead the team past traditional power teams of Weedsport and Poart Byron, and possibly all the way to the league championship.

JV Hockey gives valuable experience

By Becca Janes

The 1987 J.V. Field Hockey team was not unlike its varsity counterpart. It had only two experienced players from last year, and went through the same rebuilding that the varsity did.

The high point of the season came during the last game against Fabius-Pompey when the junior devils pushed one in scoring their first and only win of the season. Although they didn't have a winning record many players earned valuable experience as they saw a great deal of playing time. This should prove to make them stronger for next year.

Cheerleaders build spirit

What would a Football or Basketball game be without cheerleaders? Would the crowds be half as enthused if there were no cheerleaders helping to focus their spirit? Probably not.

One of the reasons cheerleading was added to many professional football and basketball teams was to build a spirit which wasn't present at the pro level. The college game had it, high school some had it, but not the pros.

It is this school spirit that the cheerleaders worked hard to install at Caro this year. Besides cheering at games the squads worked hard to prepare banners and posters.

The Football cheerleaders were under the direction of Mrs. Beverly Stone-Quinn while the basketball squads were advised by Mrs. Rose Cancro.

Injuries hamper wrestling

By Pat Grady

The Varsity Wrestling team withstood a season of adversity and finished with a respectable record.

Early in the season the team's hope of a league title were dampened by injuries. Forced to use an inexperienced lineup that consisted of two seniors, five juniors, and five sophomores. The Blue Devils struggled through the first half of the season.

As the team matured, it showed flashes of brilliance as it placed second in the Cazenovia tournament and finished strong in the league, with an inspirational win over a highly regarded Pulaski team.

Individually, Tod Pollock won his second consequtive league title and Pat Grady, Ryan Denhease, and Wade Cardinale won at least one tournament.

Varsity Basketball: Determined, Dedicated

By Lance Cancro

Work, lots of work is what it takes to play any sport let alone one that has you with the intensity basketball demands. The 1987-88 boys' varsity team did a lot of this work.

The team's overall record didn't show the improvement or the aggressiveness that the team attacked each opponent with.

Seniors, Ray Smithler, Stan Jewell, Trevor Cady, and Doug Appleman led the starting five along with junior Lance Cancro. The leadership and aggressive teamwork that each player contributed reflects in their play. An aggresion that almost every opposing coach commented on.

Off of the bench, Seniors Tom VanHorn, and Bob Hare also helped the squad along with added minutes of Juniors Paul McGetrick, Kipp Keysor, Jarred Trapp, and Dave Clifton.

These minutes, played by the returning juniors, symbolize valuable experience time that will hopefully lead next years' team to an improved season, something that is always difficult when losing so much senior talent.

JV Squad shows improvement

The 1987-88 boys J.V. Baskerball team had a year of improvement. The team started out under the pressure of having a new coach and the disadvantage of an inexperienced squad. However, even against these handicaps, the team ends the season not with a winning record but at least knowing they showed improvement over the course of the season.

One highlight was a record eight straight three-point shots by freshman, Alex Krakuszeski in the second half of the Hannibal game.

Forward Brian Leyburn fights for the ball.

Mod boys win league championship

Determination. Dedication, the Desire to win. These are the phrases to best describe the 1987-88 modified boys season. Only losing one game (in overtime), the boys showed superb teamwork under the leadership of Coach VanVliet. A league championship, led by Derk Hudson, Andy Komrowski, and Don Parchett leave hopeful thoughts for the future.

Bball blends youth and vets

Experienced seniors, enthusiastic underclassmen and a Brasilian foreign exchange student made up the Girls' Varsity Basketball team. The beginning of the season saw the seniors having most of the playing time, but as the year progressed, the underclassmen couldn't be kept out of the line-up.

Although their record of 4-13 wasn't impressive, the Lady Devils lost three games by seven, three and two points, and they showed vast improvements in the second half of the season.

The biggest highlight was their 44-27 victory over A.P.W., a team which had beaten Caro 65-39 earlier in the season. Caro jumped out to an early 11-0 lead by playing the best defensive game of the season, and then it never looked back.

The Blue Devils were led by scoring and rebounding leader Mary Rugg, a Second Team All Star selection, and senior Co-Captains Michele Tanner and Sandi Derby. Two sophomores also cracked the starting line-up, Donna Fredenburg, who was second on the team in scoring and rebounding and received a League Honorable Mention, and Lynn Podolak, who led the team in steals and breakaway baskets.

"While we didn't have the greatest won-loss record, I was very impressed with the improvements many of the players showed over the course of the season," said Coach Jon Graf. "I am very pleased with the developments of our returning players Krysta Cox, Kellie Grady, Lynne Clarke, and Fredenburg and Podolak. They should give us a good nucleus for next season."

JV Basketball develops players

Developing skills and providing valuable playing experience are two vital aspects of the Girls' Junior Varsity and Modified Basketball teams.

The J.V.'s, made up of 11 freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, were led by captains Kim Gates and Sabrina Cole. Although the team finished at 1-15, many players saw a great deal of playing time which will help to further their careers.

V-ball places second

This year's Varsity Volleyball Team went through a lot of changes, but still managed to triumph and come out near the top of the league.

First year J.V. coach Cindy Doty stepped up to fill the vacant position of Varsity coach. Co-Captains Lura Lunkenheimer and Kris Vanderveer aided in the transformation.

The team started out slow, but gained momentum. In fact, the five league losses came in the first half of the season.

The high point of the season was the grudge match against Hannibal on January 28th. Hannibal defeated Caro in their first match, going three games, earlier in the season. So Caro was out for revenge in their second meeting. The stands were filled with spectators, many of whom were as excited as the players. In the end, Caro came out on top 7-15, 15-6, 15-12. The celebration after that game will always be remembered.

Individual players were honored during the season. Kris Vanderveer and Becca Janes were named to the All Tournament team at the Fabius Pompey Tournament, and at the end of the season, three players were named to the All-Star Teams.

Becca Janes was named to first Team All-Stars, Nichole Phelps to second team, and Kris Vanderveer received an honorable mention.

The season went well and they had a good season, going 15-5 league and 19-9 overall.

The Forecast for next year is good, as they are losing only five Seniors, so four starters will be returning.

JV's win despite inexperience

By Becca Janes

This year's J.V. Volleyball team ended the season with a good record, which is a great job considering the team were all first year J.V. players except one. Not to mention first year volleyball coach Cari Giacalone having to learn along with the team.

They showed much determination and hard work, and with the varsity's occasional help, were able to overcome bigger and more experienced teams.

With such a strong and young J.V. team, you can be sure that the volleyball program at Caro will continue to be strong in the near future.

The 1987 Modified Volleyball Team worked hard and were determined to learn the skills that would allow them to compliment the J.V. and Varsity teams in the future. Fundraising: it all takes bucks!

By Lisa Connolly

Money. You can't live with it, you can't live without it — but where do you get it? And how can you keep it? There are so many clubs in our school, and we all need money (some more than others, right juniors?) We do so many crazy things for money. We sell our classmates to the highest bidder, lock our friends in cages for a menial fee, throw pies in each other's faces. We sell candy, make and sell crafts and food, hold bake sales. And we sell door-to-door, everyone's favorite. We all know Bill Boyd, with his long string of dollar bills. There's always a smart guy who tries to pocket the lot? Everyone benefits when a class purs on a dance, especially Jason Teska, who makes off with the dee-jaying fee.

More fun than raising the money, though, is spending it. But there is so much to spend it on! The seniors have their last prom and graduation to spend for, not to mention their New York City Trip. The eighth grade has their trip to take, and everyone else? We're just saving.

Musical a big success

By Becca Janes

The CMHS theatre Arts continued its tradition of musicals by presenting "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" on March 4, 1988.

The normal excitement was heightened by performing in the newly restored auditorium with an all new lighting system.

The cast had many capable actors and actresses. Some were"seasoned veterans" from past plays and others were experiencing first time jitters for their acting debuts.

The roles were 5 and 6 year old children and an obnoxius dog, so the cast had a lot of fun regressing into childhood. Most of us didn't have far to go!

Charlie Brown was played by Jason Teska, and Snoopy was performed by Becca Janes, both of whom had been on stage before in Finians Rainbow and Camelot.

Brandie Blake, Lucy, and Tristie Hunt, Linus, both used each other to conquer nerves for their first time performances.

Rounding out the cast was Dustin Czarny as Schroeder, Mary Rugg as Peppermint Patty, Andy Safnauer in the role of Pig-Pen, and last but not least Lisa Jackson as the Little red-headed girl.

The cast was directed by two-time student director Jona-Leigh Parker, first year music instructer Colleen Kelly, who was "priveleged" to have this talented cast for her first directing experience, and veteran Sally Rogers, who once again turned her expertise as an art teacher to head the stage crew, adding much to the musical.

The performance went well, and thanks to all those who helped out by either being cast, crew, or spectators. It was a great night.

Yorkers prove to be active

by Krysta Cox

"Yorkers??? What's that you say?" Yes. Yorkers is the club who's official purpose is to study New York history. Well, there's more to it than that. Its students throughout the state working together to achieve recognition for themselves as well as their schools.

Since not too many people know too much about Yorkers, we decided to give a brief description of all the activites we spend the year doing.

/,In the spring of the year, area Yorker clubs gather to compete in such events as historical term paper writing, project, and performance competitions. (For those who are wondering, a performance is a dramatization of a historical event related to the year's theme.) The top places at this regional competition then go onto the State Convention where they compete with other students from throughout New York for the opportunity to advance to the national level. You're not interested in all these projects and term papers, you say? Well, never fear, Yorkers have something for everyone.

During May, the annual Yorker meeting is held. Fifteen hundred kids from Long Island to Buffalo and from Olean to the Adirondacks gather for three days to compete, make new friends, learn new things, and most of all, have fun! Still need some convincing? Could I interest you in showing off your dancing or singing ability at the talent show, or perhaps the fast paced excitement of the History Bowl, is more to your liking . . . But whatever your interests are don't worry, Yorkers isn't all work and no play. Ask any Yorker why they joined and I'm sure they will not be at a loss for an answer.

Journalism classes add new dimension

For the past two years both the yearbook and the newspaper have been offered as courses. This change has benefitted both students and the publications.

Gaining experience in such areas as layout design, copy writing, photograpy and financial management has given students a better chance of succeeding in college. A recent study done by a national testing service has shown that college freshmen who took high school journalism courses do better than freshmen who have not. The courses have aided the publications themselves in that as students learn more and more about professional journalism, the publications are looking more professional.

Awareness Day a success

The first annual Cultural Awareness Day, sponsored by the Cultural Exchange Club, was held February 17, and 18.

The event saw foreign exchange students from all over Central New York, visit Caro. Following a welcome pizza party, the students stayed with Exchange Club members overnight on Thursday and then visited classes, putting on presentations all day Friday.

Caro students learned first hand about life in Brazil, India, and Mexico to name but a few of the countries represented.

Saturday Swooshing

Swooshing down a soft snow-powdered surface is for many of our students an exciting way to spend winter Saturdays.

Despite the idea of getting up in time to catch the 7 a.m. bus, and not getting home until 6 p.m. our Ski Club remains one of the most popular organizations.

Beginning in late December and going until the end of February a bus load of students makes its journey to Song Mountain ski area south of Syracuse. The Ski Club gives its members a chance to practice a life long sport and also provides an excellent outside-of-school experience for our students.

Store added benefit

By Howard Klein

The School Store opened in the Fall of 1985. It was started by Mrs. McCall, and is run by students who attend her classes. The store serves many purposes, such as supplying students with needed school-materials, and teaching the volunteer workers valuable business skills. The workers have gained experiences in accounting, bookkeeping, advertising, and public relations. They have also shown the responsibility to run a small business.

The store has been successful during the past three years and has provided an important service for both students and teachers. Profits from the store will go toward a scholarship for a student with special needs.

Breaking Tradition

Advertisements

Breaking tradition takes money

Breaking tradition. That is the theme of our yearbook, and breaking tradition is what we have done. Over the past two years our book has evolved from a simple picture book to the beginnings of a 1980's upbeat, capturing of the entire year book.

Unfortunately next year's book will be the last one done in the 80's. What's beyond in the 1990's? We hope that we can continue producing a bigger and better book, but that takes money!

We thank our patrons and advertisers for their support this year, for without them this book would not be possible. Please support them with your patronage.

Enthusiastic students arrive for the school day.
